WASHINGTON.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, June 15, 1877. THE NATION NEWSPAPER CHANGED HANDS. The Washington Dasly Nation passed to-day into the hands of Mr. Earnest Lord Kinney, a citizen of the District, who has associated with him in the management of the paper Mr. Albert Rhodes, the author.

GENERAL WASHINGTON DESPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, June 15, 1877.

THE FOUR PER CENT BONDS-ADDITION TO SECRETARY SHERMAN'S PROSPECTUS-CIR-CULAR TO THE NATIONAL BANKS.

The Secretary of the Treasury has issued the following as an addition to the prospectus issued yesterday

Any person subscribing and making payment in full before July 1, 1877, will receive from the Treasurer of the United States an interest check covering the period from the date of such payment to the date of the bond, July 1, 1877. relative to the four per cent bonds:-

The Comptroller of the Currency has this day assued the following circular to the national banks in reference to the new four per cent loan:-

the following circular to the national banks in reference to the new four per cent toan:—

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,

OFFICE OF COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY,

WASHINGTON, June 15, 1877.

In reply to numerous inquiries received from the national banks in reference to the terms and conditions upon which United States bonds may be obtained, timmy be stated the issue of the lour and a haif per ceat bonds has ceased, and I transmit herewith the published proposals of the associated contractors for the new four per cent thirty-year United States bonds issued with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. It is a condition of the contract that the loan should be offered for a reasonable period to the people of the United States at par, and the circular accordingly invites subscriptions at par until the lists of July prox. with the privilege of parmeat for three months theresiter. It is understood that the loans will be offered in Europe as well as here, and the associates may advance the price after that date. It remains, therefore, to be seen to what extent the privilege of purchase thus reserved will be availed of, and the expectation and desire is general that the American subscriptions shall be as large as possible.

As the subscriptions by the people outside of the commercial cities will be paid largely in currency while the bonds by law can be sold only for gold, it is obvious that the banks must generally be employed by the public either for the purchase of the gold or for remitting the currency to the associates in New York for that purpose, the bonds are dated July I, and bear interest from that date, but where subscriptions made during the present month are paid in full interest for the period from date of superpition to date of bond will be remay for delivery on July 2. Payments made after July 1 will be charged with accrued there as a four per cent from the date of the bonds up to the date of such payment at the current premium of gold.

nterest at four per cent from the date of the bonds ap to the date of such psymont at the current premam of gold.

The present bonds will be sold at a lower price than anyother issue, while, as they matere only after thirty pears, they are more desirable, from their permanence, that bonds bearing higher rates of interest, whose net returns on the amount invested will be found to be slightly, if at all, higher than the income from the new issue. National banks which may desire to exchange the bonds now on deposit with the Treasurer, or who propose to increase their circulation, can avail themselves of the opportunity to subscribe for these bonds until the light of acxi July, paying for the same at any time within three months thereafter. The national banks have always heretofore met the linancial exigencies of the government with the essential assistance which they were able to allord, and it is believed that they will heartly join with the Secretary of the Treasury in reducing the public burdens and giving unity and simplicity to the system of the national finances.

TEMPORARY ABSENCE OF THE ARGENTINE MIN-ISTER.

seing absent on leave, the Secretary of the Argentine legation, Señor G. Videla Dorna, was to-day preented to Assistant Secretary Seward, at the State Desartment, as the accredited representative of the Re-Jublic during the Minister's absence.

EXTRADISION WITH ENGLAND BEFORE THE CABINET MEETING.

At the Cabinet meeting to-day the prepriety of open ing negotiations for a new extradition treaty with Eng-and and the general terms which should be proposed in the event of such segotiations being inaugurated were subjects of discussion without action,

RETURN OF OFFICIALS ANTICIPATED. flicers who have been at West Point for several days past, and the Secretary of the Navy, with the chiefs of the various bureaus in his department, who have been aspecting the navy yards at League Island, Pa., and Brooklyn, N. Y., are expected to return here to:

THE CONSOLIDATED PENSION AGENCIES. The list of appointments for the consolidated pension gencies throughout the United States is not yet completed. Strong political influences are being brought o bear to secure the selection of various rival applicants for retention, or to obtain the offices for outside parties who are not now in any way connected with of the President and Secretary Schurz to ignor personal and political influences in these appointments, d to bestow them in every instance upon thos pension agents who, in their respective consolidated districts, have made the best "civil service" records. other things being equal, have the longest unexpired

It was decided that the consolidated Pension Agency for lilinois shall be located at Springfield instead of Chicago, and that Knoxville (instead of Richmond, as heretofore ordered), shall be the seat of the office for the payment of pensions in Virginia, West Virginia.

POINT OF ROCKS INQUEST.

WHO WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE FATAL

BALTIMORE, June 15, 1877. A number of witnesses, including employes and officers of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company were examined at Frederick, Md., to-day, before the Coroner's jury, in regard to the collision near Point of Rocks on Tuesday last, the latter being questioned par-the special orders under which they ran. As far as the examination has proceeded the testimony seems to place the responsibility on the conductor of the excursion train.

The examination will continue several days, and the jury intend to get at all the facts and fix the responsibility where it belongs.

DESTRUCTION OF A HARDWARE MANUFACTORY.

Pirisuuno, Pa., June 15, 1877. The extensive works of the Jacobus & Nimick Manu facturing Company, on Diamond street, between Smithfield and Grant streets, were destroyed by fire this morning about three o'clock. The building was of brick, four stories nigh, with a frontage of 125 feet on Diamond street and extended back about 70 feet. The company were engaged in the manufacture of light hardware—locks, bronzes, &c.—and the works con-tained a great deal of delicate and costly machinery, patterns and manufactured articles, all of which were destroyed. The company estimate their loss at $125,000, on which there is insurance of $30,000, dis-tributed in small amounts among numerous compa-nies. The flames extended to the printing and book-binding establishment of Baixewell & Marthons, on Grant street, destroying the bindery. The stock and machinery in the other departments of the establish-ment were injured by water. Thoir loss is estimated at $15,000. Amount of insurance onknown.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 15, 1877.

Jacob Dodd's slaughter house at East Buffalo was struck by lightning during a heavy thunder storm this morning and destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $40,000; insured. Three firemen, named Hugo Lepoere, Charles Wagner and Louis Phillips, were injured, the first named serious'y and the others slightly.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 15, 1877. A fire broke out in Hodges' saloon, at Decatur, Ala., vesterday morning, and destroyed a number of bustness houses, involving a loss of $37,000. The principal losers are J. B. Stuart, $5,000; L. L. Warren, $3,000; L. L. Downs, $4,500; J. T. Owens, $3,000; T. O. Tatum, $3,000.

ATTEMPT TO BURN A VILLAGE.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., June 15, 1877. A despatch states that two unsuccessful attempts were made on the night of the 12th inst. by inconiaries to burn the Shaker settlement at New Leb-non, N. Y., but the flames were seasonably ducov-

MADGE DARREL'S SECRET.

As the clerk changed his office coat for his street one he apparently thought of something, for he approached his employer hat in hand.

prosened dis employer but in hand.
"I forgot to say, Mr. Hilliard, there's been a man hanging round the better part of the afternoon. He came in after a while and asked what time Mr. Archibald would be in, and when I told him Mr. Archibald didn't come to his brother's office oftener than once in six months, and hadn't been heard of at home for three, he said I was a well-trained liar, but it wouldn't go down with him. The man's a little crazy, I should Growds of workmen, with their dinner pails and baskets, were streaming by. The strains of Colt's band came in at the window, playing the "ricert Bowed Down," and certainly Maurice looked very much bowed down. The man was perplexed. More than that, he was alarmed at a catastrophe which Even as he pondered there was a slight noise at the further end of the room. A pile of boxes, to be shipped the cusuing day, rose above the top of the railing encircling an enclosure, behind which sat the several clerks employed by Maurice Hilliard in his special department of Colt's pistol manufactory.

Instinctively the man at the window felt a thrill of certainty that he was not the only occupant of the room, and perhaps no surprise mingled with the disthose boxes of an elderly, moffensive looking man occasioned the proprietor of the place.

As the man came forward from behind the boxes where he had been concealed for several bours, Manrice was the first to speak.

"Well, what do you propose to accomplish by this new mode of procedure? Had you waited for me I. should have come to you." "How would you have come?" bissed the old man:

and now Maurice noticed that the worn face was set with a sort of despuir, that his lips trembled and an unusual light burned in the sunken eyes.

"How would you have come? Honorable, do you dare to say? prepared to right the wrong you have wrought on me and mine?"

"Mr. Langdon, be patient, will you?" interposed Maurice in a conciliatory tone. "You have always "Never what I do to-day," hoarsely broke in the old

"Willing to marry my poor girl, my poor Nell-to father your unborn child, that lies to-day under the heaviest heart that ever beat?"

"Well, no-not-," stammered the cornered man,
"No! I knew that! I knew that!" repeated the old farmer. "I knew that no hope lay that way for my child when I sought her wronger in Hartford this day, and learned that the rich and powerful Maurice-not ought me to shame and disgrace. Why, man, I came in from my place to-day to find in you the poor tellow you have represented yourself as being—to tell you I had sold the Red Wing Farm, and to offer you that money for you and Nell to go far away and settle and be happy.

Maurice had nothing to say. Some way the brokenhearted, crushed old father seemed, even to his impu-

"But don't blink," and the farmer's voice rose in his wrathful excitement, "don't think I shall quietly sit down and see my girl's life blighted."

The natural aggressiveness of Maurice Hilhard's character could no longer brook the meckness he had thus far assumed. He turned haughtily upon the man he had wronged.

"See here, Langdon"-be flung the words at him insolently..." am a gentleman, ready to do what's right, It you have sold the farm, so much the better. Take Nell-take your daughter, and in some strange place this little affair won't amount to anything."

Perhaps nothing Hilliard could have said would have

"I'm glad you don't," speered Hilliard," for I wil find a way to dispose of you."

It was an idle, unmeaning threat, but it added to the fury of the incensed farmer. No match was he for the younger man, but, blind with rage and shame, the old man sprang upon Maurice Hilliard. Totally unprepared for personal violence, that worthy for an instant was staggered. Then, finding he had to deal with a maniac, each instant growing stronger as excitement nerved his arm, Maurice struggled with the infuriated larmer. It was all be could do to detach the hard-bent fingers from his throat, and Hilliard was purple in the face when he freed himself. During this meles the baize door was flung noiselessly open, and a fair blonde girl with amaz ment took in the scene. This was Catherine Kieroff, the Russian woman who had left home and of the cartridge shop, and overlooked as well the work of some of the girls who made fancy caskets to contain pairs of presentation pistois. Catherine had been em-

It was not an unusual thing for Catherine, after hours, to seek the society of Maurice on some slight pretext, and to-night she took an unimportant matter of business as an excuse, and thus noiselessly entered, to become a witness of the exciting encounter

ployed in Russia in the same capacity by Colonel Con-who for many years had an extensive armory near St.

between her lover and old Langdon.

Breathlessly she stood upon the threshhold; she saw Maurice struggle to free bimself, saw him succeed and draw himself up in a defensive attitude. Saw the old man dash at him with the fury of a mad man-saw with dilating eyes her lover seize a casting in steel of some bit of machinery offered for approvat. Quick as lightning the beavy fragment described a semi-circle and struck the old man a crushing blow on his temple. The effect of that blow brought Hilliard to his senses. A shrick rang through the room, and, to his horror, Maurice turned and saw Catherine, it was but a breath of time ere another shrick could leave her parted lips, he had her by the arm and rudely silenced her.

Old Myron Langdon had fallen heavily to the floor, a ghastly wound in his temple showing how terrible and marderous a blow he had received.

Not a word was apoken by the man and woman standing over him. The faint gasps of the victim rose and fell. It seemed an eternity to the watching position, raised its hand and tried to stay the blood that rushed from the ghastly hole and mingled with the thin gray bairs, matted and clotted already upon his temple.

He gazed about as if falling to understand the situation; then, as his dazed senses slowly righted, his eyes fell upon Maurice. He choked-there was a gurgling sound in his throat at which he clusched with bloody fingers. With one last effort he found his voice; he succeeded in getting almost on his knees; he lifted high his blood-stanged hand toward Maurice, and in tones that froze the hearts of both hearers denounced his murderer:-"You've killed me !" gasped the wounded man, "but you cannot escape! Though it be fifty years your crime shall find you out!" There was an ominous raitle in the old man's throat. a wild, convulsive, shivering effort to raise his gory face to heaven. Then the head fell forward, the whole body collapsed, and with a dull sound Myron Langdon fell in a heap upon the floor-dead! To be continued
